I. Introduction

The Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005 ("BAPCPA") brought much needed clarity to debtor and creditor rights relative to retirement assets in a federal bankruptcy proceeding. For debtors in financial distress under the federal bankruptcy laws, BAPCPA not only provides clarification but actually extends bankruptcy protection for the debtor's retirement funds. For debtors in financial distress who are subject to state attachment and garnishment proceedings outside of bankruptcy, the confusion continues.

II. The Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005 ("BAPCPA")

A. Key Points of BAPCPA for Retirement Plan Assets.

1. The Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005 ("BAPCPA") makes significant changes in bankruptcy rules and adds specific protections for tax-qualified retirement plans and IRAs. BAPCPA is effective for bankruptcy petitions filed on or after October 17, 2005.

2. BAPCPA exempts retirement plan assets from a debtor's bankruptcy estate if such assets are held by:
 - a. an Internal Revenue Code §401(a) tax-qualified retirement plan,
 - b. a section 403(b) plan,
 - c. a section 457 plan, or
 - d. an IRA (including traditional IRAs, Roth IRAs, SEPs and SIMPLEs) under §§408 or 408A.

11 USC §522(d)(12).

3. The exemption for IRAs is limited to $1,000,000. The $1,000,000 has been increased by COLAs to $1,245,475. However, the $1,000,000 limit does not apply to employer-sponsored IRAs (e.g., SEPs or SIMPLEs). Additionally, rollovers into IRAs from qualified plans are not subject to the $1,000,000 limit. In other words, SEPs, SIMPLEs, and IRA rollovers from qualified plans have an unlimited exemption. It appears that a rollover from a SEP or SIMPLE-IRA receives only $1,000,000 of protection.

Practice Hint:

In order to make sure that an individual receives the full $1,000,000 exemption on contributory IRAs and the unlimited exemption on IRA rollovers, it is a good idea to establish separate IRA rollover and contributory IRA accounts. This will make it easier to track the separate pools of assets.

4. BAPCPA exempts assets in retirement plans that satisfy the applicable requirements of the Internal Revenue Code. A retirement plan is deemed to be qualified under BAPCPA if it has received a favorable determination letter from the IRS.

BAPCPA thereby increases the importance of obtaining an individual IRS determination letter for a qualified plan.

If the plan has not received a favorable determination letter, the debtor must demonstrate that:

- a. neither the IRS nor a court has made a determination that the plan is not qualified, and
- b.
 - i. the plan is in substantial compliance with the Internal Revenue Code, or
 - ii. the plan is not in substantial compliance but the debtor is not materially responsible for the failure.

11 USC §522(b).

5. BAPCPA exempts payroll deductions to repay plan loans from the automatic stay provisions. Therefore, payroll deduction repayments may continue during the pendency of the bankruptcy proceeding.

Additionally, retirement plan loan obligations are not discharged in bankruptcy.

6. In summary, under BAPCPA, qualified plan, SEP and SIMPLE assets, and IRA rollovers are protected with no dollar limitation. IRAs and Roth IRAs are protected to $1,000,000. BAPCPA only applies to assets in bankruptcy. One must look to state law for protection of IRA assets in state law (e.g., garnishment) actions.

B. Further Analysis Under BAPCPA.

1. Determination of the Tax Qualified Status of Plan.

For bankruptcy law purposes, there is a presumption of exemption from tax if the fund or account has received a favorable ruling from the IRS (e.g., an IRS favorable determination letter issued to an employer-sponsored tax-qualified retirement plan).

The U.S. First Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed a ruling that a prototype or volume submitter opinion letter from the IRS may not be considered to be a favorable ruling from the IRS for bankruptcy purposes. Daniels v. Agin (In re: Daniels), 452 B.R. 335 (Bankr. D. Mass. 2011), affd., 482 B.R. 1 (D. Mass. 2012), affd., No. 12-2376 (1st Cir. 11/25/2013). Therefore, it is a good idea for such plans to file for individual determination letters from the IRS in order to assure maximum creditor protection.

Since IRS Announcement 2011-82 and Rev. Proc. 2014-6 limit the issuance of individual determination letters for pre-approved plans to Volume Submitter plans that modify the terms of the pre-approved specimen plan, we will need to monitor developments on this issue.

2. Power of Court to Examine Plan's Qualified Status.

Another issue of concern is the extent to which a court can examine a plan to determine if its tax qualified status should be revoked. The United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals held in In the Matter of Don Royal Plunk, 481 F.3d 302 (5th Cir. 2007) that a bankruptcy court can determine whether a retirement plan has lost its tax-qualified status, and therefore its protection in bankruptcy, because the debtor misused the plan assets.

3. Retirement Plan Distributions.

BAPCPA provides limited post-bankruptcy protection for distributions of retirement plan assets to plan participants. "Eligible rollover distributions" retain their exempt status after they are distributed. Minimum required distributions and hardship distributions are not protected since they are not eligible rollover distributions.

4. Owner Only Plans are Protected in Bankruptcy.

There is case law and Department of Labor ("DOL") Regulations holding that a qualified retirement plan that benefited only the business owner (and/or the owner's spouse) was not an Employee Retirement Income Security Act ("ERISA") Plan and, therefore, could not invoke ERISA anti-alienation protections either inside or outside of bankruptcy. Within a federal bankruptcy proceeding, this concern has been eliminated to the extent that the debtor has a favorable ruling from the IRS or is otherwise deemed to have a tax-exempt plan as noted above.

5. “Opt-Out” States and the Anti-Stacking Rule.

The Bankruptcy Code allows debtors to claim certain property as exempt, using either exemptions allowed under state law, or exemptions provided in the Bankruptcy Code. While this choice is available in a few states, the majority of states mandate that debtors use only the exemptions provided under state law. 11 U.S.C. §522(b)(1).

Thus, states can “opt-out” of the exemptions provided by the Bankruptcy Code.

32 states have elected to “opt-out” of the federal bankruptcy exemptions.

As a general rule, either the federal or the state exemptions apply.

An “anti-stacking” rule provides that a debtor using the state law exemptions is not also entitled to the federal exemptions.

6. Exception to "Anti-Stacking" Rule.

BAPCPA added Bankruptcy Code §522(b)(3)(C) which creates an exception to the "anti-stacking" clause of Bankruptcy Code §522(b)(1). The anti-stacking clause generally requires that a debtor choose between federal and state law exemptions. Under §522(b)(3)(C), even if the debtor chooses the state law exemptions, he can still exempt from his bankruptcy estate any of his "retirement funds" under federal law exemptions.

In enacting BAPCPA, Congress created a new class of exemptions for certain retirement funds regardless of whether the state of domicile of the debtor has opted out of the federal scheme for other property. For retirement funds, 11 U.S.C. §522(b)(3)(C) is applicable to opt-out states and 11 U.S.C. §522(d)(12) applies in the federal exemption scheme. The two provisions are identical and provide for an exemption for: retirement funds to the extent that those funds are in a fund or account that is exempt from taxation under §§401, 403, 408, 408A, 414, 457 or 501(a) of the Internal Revenue Code.

The U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals held that:

“... debtors in opt-out states [like Arizona] are not limited to the IRA exemption provided by state law but may, independent of state law, claim the [Federal law] exemption under §522(b)(3)(C) ...”

In re: Hamlin, 465 B.R. 837 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2012).

This case is important since some states in the 9th Circuit (e.g., California) provide very weak protection for IRA assets.

The exception to the anti-stacking rule for retirement plan assets goes both ways — it provided both the federal and the state law exemptions for plan and IRA assets.

As shown in In re: Reinhart, 109 AFTR 2010 (10 Cir. 2012) if the state law exemptions provide greater protection for retirement plan assets than the federal exemptions, the state law exemptions will apply.

In Reinhart, the U.S. 10th Circuit Court of Appeals followed the decision of the Utah Supreme Court that as long as a retirement plan “substantially complies” with the IRC §401(a) requirements, the plan was covered by the Utah bankruptcy exemption statute. Further, a plan was in substantial compliance if its defects fell within the scope of defects that “could” be corrected under the IRS EPCRS program.

C. Inherited IRAs — Clark v. Rameker.

1. Clark v. Rameker, 573 U.S. ____ (June 12, 2014).

U.S. Supreme Court held that inherited IRAs are not “retirement funds” under Bankruptcy Code Section 522(b)(3)(C) and not exempt in bankruptcy. The case involved a debtor who inherited an IRA from her mother.

The Supreme Court ruled that assets in an inherited IRA are not “retirement funds” for three reasons:

- a. The holder of an inherited IRA cannot contribute additional funds to the account.
- b. Holders of inherited IRAs are required to receive distributions from the accounts regardless of their age.
- c. The holder of an inherited IRA can withdraw the entire balance of the account at any time regardless of age and use the funds for any purpose without a 10% premature distribution penalty.

2. Spouse as Beneficiary.

The Court in Clark implied in dicta that if a surviving spouse rolls over an inherited IRA into his or her own IRA it will not be treated as an inherited IRA and will be exempt.

If the spouse chooses to treat the IRA as an inherited IRA, however, it may not be an exempt asset. The Supreme Court stated that “the spouse has a choice.”

3. State Law Exemption.

If a state is an opt-out state, an exemption to the anti-stacking rules provides the debtor with both the state law and bankruptcy code exemptions with respect to retirement plan assets. Ohio Rev. Code § 2329.66(A)(10)(e) specifically exempts inherited IRAs from creditor claims for a debtor domiciled in Ohio.

Alaska, Arizona, Florida, Indiana, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Texas provide similar exemptions for inherited IRAs.

4. Tax Qualified Retirement Plans.

“ERISA plans” are excluded (not exempt) from the bankruptcy estate. Paterson v. Shumate, 112 S.Ct. 2242 (1992).

Therefore, an inherited account in an ERISA Title I Plan should be excluded in bankruptcy and not subject to the analysis in Clark.

“Owner-Only” Plans covering only an owner and/or the owner’s spouse are not Title I plans and would presumably be subject to the analysis in Clark since the exemption for such plans is under the same bankruptcy section reviewed in Clark.

5. Inherited IRAs Outside of Bankruptcy.

Creditor cases involving IRAs outside of bankruptcy are governed by state, rather than federal, law. As a result, the exemption statute of the state where the debtor is domiciled will control and the analysis will be based on the specific language of the exemption statute.

For example, an inherited IRA in California is not exempt from creditor claims under CA. CCP § 701.140(b)(10)(G).

See the chart at the end of this outline for a state-by-state analysis of IRAs as exempt property.

III. ERISA and Internal Revenue Code Anti-Alienation Provisions

A. ERISA.

Title I of ERISA requires that a pension plan shall provide that benefits under the plan may not be assigned or alienated; i.e., the plan must provide a contractual "anti-alienation" clause. [See ERISA §206(d), 29 U.S.C. §1056(d)(1).]

B. Internal Revenue Code.

Buttressing ERISA, the Internal Revenue Code (the "Code") provides that "a trust shall not constitute a qualified trust under this Section unless the plan of which such trust is a part provides that benefits provided under the plan may not be assigned or alienated." [Code §401(a)(13)(A).]

C. Exceptions.

There are a number of exceptions to ERISA's and the Code's anti-alienation provisions:

1. Qualified domestic relations orders ("QDROs"), as defined in Code §414(p), may be exempted.
2. Up to 10% of any benefit in pay status may be voluntarily and revocably assigned or alienated.
3. A participant may direct the plan to pay a benefit to a third party if the direction is revocable and the third party files acknowledgment of lack of enforceability.

4. Federal tax levies and judgments are exempted.
 - a. The IRS has issued a Field Service Advice Memorandum advising that a retirement plan does not have to honor an IRS levy for taxes to the extent that the taxpayer is not entitled to an immediate distribution of benefits from the plan. [FSA 199930039.]
 - b. If the plan is subject to spousal qualified joint and survivor annuity requirements, the only collection avenue available to the IRS is through joint and survivor annuity payments unless the IRS can obtain the spouse's consent to receive a lump-sum distribution from the plan to satisfy the levy.

5. Criminal or civil judgments, consent decrees and settlement agreements may permit the offset of a participant's benefits under a plan and order the participant to pay the plan due to a fiduciary violation or crime committed by the participant against the plan.

6. Federal Criminal Penalties.

In Private Letter Ruling (PLR) 200342007 the IRS ruled that "the general anti-alienation rule of Code §401(a)(13) does not preclude a court's garnishing the account balance of a fined participant in a qualified pension plan in order to collect a fine imposed in a federal criminal action."

See also: PLR 200426027 and U.S. v. Novak, 476 F.3d 1041 (9th Cir. 2007).

D. ERISA Preemption.

The anti-alienation provisions of ERISA are given force by the preemption provisions also contained in ERISA. ERISA §514(a) provides that the provisions of ERISA supersede state laws insofar as such laws relate to employee benefit plans. The ERISA anti-alienation and preemption provisions combine to make state attachment and garnishment laws inapplicable to an individual's benefits under an ERISA-covered employee benefit plan.

E. General Creditors of the Sponsoring Employer.

The general creditors of a corporation or other sponsoring employer cannot reach the assets contained in such employer's qualified retirement plan. The statutory rationale is that a qualified retirement plan is established for the exclusive benefit of the employees and their beneficiaries. Furthermore, the terms of the trust must be such as to make it impossible, prior to the satisfaction of all liabilities to the employees and their beneficiaries, for any part of the funds to be diverted to purposes other than the exclusive benefit of the employees and their beneficiaries.

IV. Additional Analysis

A. United States Supreme Court.

1. In Patterson v. Shumate, 112 S.Ct. 2242 (1992) the U.S. Supreme Court held that ERISA's prohibition against the assignment or alienation of pension benefits is enforceable in bankruptcy.

Thus, a debtor's interest in an ERISA pension plan was excluded from the bankruptcy estate and not subject to attachment by creditor's claims.

2. Note that Patterson v. Shumate was decided prior to the enactment of BAPCPA and excludes “ERISA plans” from bankruptcy.

BAPCPA is not limited to ERISA plans but provides an exemption rather than an exclusion for bankruptcy.

B. Owner-Only Plans Are At Risk Outside of Bankruptcy.

1. BAPCPA draws no distinction between owner-only plans and other tax-qualified retirement plans with respect to bankruptcy exemption. Outside of bankruptcy, however, it appears that such plans may be subject to attachment by creditors.

2. Department of Labor Regulations provide that a husband and wife who solely own a corporation are not employees for retirement plan purposes. The Regulations further provide that a plan which covers only partners or only a sole proprietor is not covered under Title I of ERISA.

However, a plan under which one or more common-law employees (in addition to the owners) are participants will be covered under Title I and ERISA protections will be applicable to all participants (not just the common-law employees). [29 C.F.R. §2510.3-3(b), (c)(1).] Thus, inclusion of one or more non-owner employees transforms a non-ERISA plan into an ERISA-qualified plan and thereby protects the plan assets from the claims of creditors.

3. In Yates v. Hendon, 124 S.Ct 1330 (2004), the U.S. Supreme Court noted that Department of Labor Advisory Opinion 99-04A interprets 29 CFR §2510.3-3 to mean that the statutory term "employee benefit plan" does not include a plan whose only participants are the owner and his or her spouse, but does include a plan that covers as participants one or more common-law employees, in addition to the self-employed individuals. The Supreme Court noted that "[t]his agency view...merits the Judiciary's respectful consideration."

C. ERISA Protections Do Not Apply to Funds After Distribution From Retirement Plan (But Bankruptcy Protections May Apply).

Once the benefits have been distributed from the plan, a creditor's rights are enforceable against the beneficiary, but not against the plan itself. Hoult v. Hoult, 373 F.3d 47 (1st Cir. 2004).

However, Bankruptcy Code §522(b)(4)(D) provides that "eligible rollover distribution" retain their exempt status in bankruptcy after they are distributed.

* "Tracing" of amounts following distributions from a retirement plan or IRA can be very important.

V. Individual Retirement Accounts

A. IRAs in Bankruptcy – 2005 Bankruptcy Act (BAPCPA).

1. Traditional IRAs and Roth IRAs are exempt to $1,000,000 (currently $1,245,475).
2. SEPs and SIMPLE-IRAs are exempt without a dollar limitation.
3. Rollovers into IRAs from qualified plans, section 403(b) plans or section 457 plans are not subject to the $1,000,000 exemption limitation. Rollovers from such plans into IRAs are exempt without a dollar limitation.
4. It appears that a rollover from a SEP or SIMPLE-IRA would receive only $1,000,000 of protection since a Code §408(d)(3) rollover is not one of the rollovers sanctioned under Bankruptcy Code §522(n).

B. IRAs in State Law (Non-Bankruptcy) Creditor Actions.

1. a. ERISA defines a "pension" plan under its jurisdiction as any "plan, fund or program which is established or maintained by an employer... that provides retirement income to employees" [ERISA §3(2)(A)]. Thus, the typical pension, profit-sharing or Section 401(k) plan constitutes an ERISA pension plan. The DOL held that SEP and SIMPLE IRAs are ERISA pension plans due to the employer involvement in such arrangements. Conversely, traditional and Roth IRAs that are created and funded without employer involvement are not ERISA pension plans.

- b. ERISA pension plans are afforded extensive anti-alienation creditor protection both inside and outside of bankruptcy. [ERISA §206(d)]. However, these extensive anti-alienation protections do not extend to an IRA arrangement under Code §408 even if the IRA may constitute an ERISA pension plan due to being established as a SEP or SIMPLE IRA [ERISA §4(b) and 201].

- 2. Non-SEP and SIMPLE IRAs. An individually-established and funded traditional or Roth IRA is not an ERISA pension plan. That being the case, state law that relates to such IRAs is not preempted under ERISA. Many states provide protection to IRAs based on the IRA owner's state of residency.
- a. The state of residency of the IRA owner/participant determines which state law applies to the IRA for exemption purposes.

- b. Assets rolled from a SEP or SIMPLE IRA into a rollover IRA should lose their characterization as parts of an ERISA pension plan, would not thereafter be subject to ERISA preemption, and could then take advantage of state law protections for non-SEP and SIMPLE IRAs. Such rolled-over IRAs should then be afforded unlimited protections under non-bankruptcy proceedings in states like Ohio and be allowed $1 million dollars worth of protection in a bankruptcy proceeding.

C. Treatment of IRAs with Prohibited Transactions.

1. Prohibited Transaction Defined.

- a. Code §4975(c)(1) states that the term "prohibited transaction" means any direct or indirect:
 - i. sale or exchange, or leasing, of any property between a plan and a disqualified person;
 - ii. lending of money or other extension of credit between a plan and a disqualified person;

- iii. furnishing of goods, services, or facilities between a plan and a disqualified person;
- iv. transfer to, or use by or for the benefit of, a disqualified person of the income or assets of a plan;

- v. act by a disqualified person who is a fiduciary whereby he deals with the income or assets of a plan in his own interests or for his own account; or
- vi. receipt of any consideration for his own personal account by any disqualified person who is a fiduciary from any party dealing with the plan in connection with a transaction involving the income or assets of the plan.

- b. "Disqualified persons" include the person who established the IRA, members of his or her family, corporations, trusts or other entities owned or controlled by such individuals, and fiduciaries. Code §4975(e)(2).
- c. The term "plan" for purposes of applying the prohibited transaction rules includes an IRA. Code §4975(e)(1).

2. IRA ceases to be an IRA if owner engages in prohibited transaction.

If the owner (or beneficiary) of an individual retirement account, as described in IRC §408(a), engages in any transaction that is prohibited under IRC §4975, the IRA ceases to be an IRA as of the first day of the taxable year in which the transaction occurs. See IRC §408(e)(2)(A). This means the special tax benefits accorded the IRA are lost.

3. Deemed distribution of IRA assets.

If an IRA ceases to be an IRA because of a prohibited transaction described in the prior paragraph, the entire value of the IRA, determined as of the first day of the taxable year for which the account or annuity ceases to be an IRA, is treated as distributed to the IRA owner (or beneficiary, in the case of an IRA for a deceased participant). See IRC §408(e)(2)(B).

Practice Hint:

If a client wants to invest IRA assets in a non-traditional investment (e.g., real estate or an LLC), set up a separate IRA for that specific investment.

4. Loss of Status as IRA May Result in Loss of Creditor Protection for Assets of (Former) IRA.

- a. As noted above, if there is even one minor prohibited transaction (PT), the rule is that the entire IRA is treated as terminated and all of its assets distributed to the owner on the first day of the year in which the PT occurred. Creditors are now analyzing the transactions of the IRAs of debtors to find PTs in order to destroy the account's status as an IRA and thereby make the assets of the former IRA subject to attachment.

- b. In In re: Ernest W. Willis, 2011 WL 1522383 (11 Cir. 2011) the U.S. Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the judgment of a U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Florida that as a result of a PT an IRA lost its status as an IRA and thereby lost its exemption in bankruptcy.
- c. Moral: Be very careful not to engage in prohibited transactions — especially with an IRA.
